LABOR is haemorrhaging votes in Queensland's regions and failing to pick up seats in the state's southeast, following a horror campaign start that could cost Annastacia Palaszczuk power.

Courier Mail-Galaxy polls of seven key battleground electorates reveal that Labor's only path to securing a second term now may be victories in several knife-edge LNP seats in the southeast.

The bombshell polls reveal rocketing support for One Nation, with Pauline Hanson's party attracting a whopping 33 per cent of the primary vote in the ALP heartland seat of Logan.
